

What You Will Need:

Fabric scraps

10 pieces of 10"x1.75" fabrics

Cotton fabric for lining (measure after the outer layers are done)

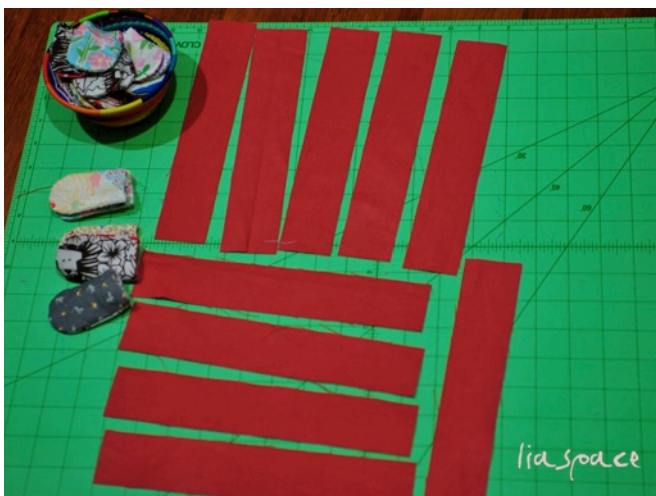

7" zipper

Wrist handle

Disclaimer: You are free to use this pattern for your personal purposes. Should you wish to sell your creation made from this pattern, please note on your thank you tag that your sold item was made using a pattern from www.liaspaces.com

INSTRUCTION:

1. Cut out the pattern pieces

2. Sew your little scraps right sides together, trim sides and leave an opening at the top to turn

3. Glue the top of the scraps or top of the fabric body using fabric glue or you can always pin them, I was just lazy

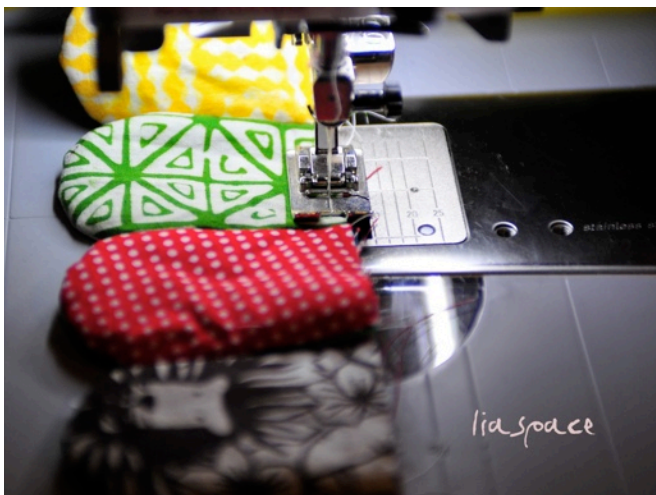

4. Arrange the scraps according to your taste and your own color scheme

7. Here is how it would look when I open the second layer before sewing

5. Top stitch the first row of the scraps so they will stay in place when sewing the zipper (approx. 1/8")

8. After stitching the layers together, top stitch each layer so that the scraps will face down

6. Sandwich the first layer to the second layer so that the second layer's scraps are between the top of first layer while the second layer is facing down

9. Both sides after sewing the layers together

10. The back side...You should trim those excess threads :p

13. You are done...just need to close the opening made to turn the pouch on the lining by hand

11. stitch the edges of your zipper with scraps, approximately fold 2" x the width of your zipper

12. Then sew the outer and lining to the zipper (similar method as most of my zippered wallets), being careful not to stitch the scraps

Scrappy lined zippered pouch by www.liaspace.com
Scalpy template with 0.375" seam allowance

